Even if this is not the case, we may hold classes using the media.

Detailed Syllabus Information

Course Subtitle	Contemporary Design
Language of the Course	Japanese
Learning Methods	Listening and watching face-to-face/online class: Listening and watching a lecture, video, or demonstration, face-to-face or via online (e.g., attending a face-to-face lecture, watching an on-demand video)
Course Objectives	In this course we will study trends in contemporary design. In the previous semester's lecture, we examined the development of modern design in the 20th century, and this second semester's lecture is a continuation of the previous lecture. We will begin with an overview of the major trends in the last 200 years of design history, followed by an explanation of some of the concerns of contemporary design. These concerns include the environment, society, participation, community, speculation, and the future. Finally, we will focus on food design, which has not been widely recognized as a design field in Japan, and examine how the ideas introduced in this lecture can be applied to food.
Learning Goals	1	Understand the evolution of design throughout history. Identify the presence of design in everyday life. Evaluate the impact of design on society. Apply design principles to improve everyday life.
